Spring Break has come and gone and it still doesn't feel all that much like springtime. However, school events and activities remind us that we are, indeed, in the final stretch of the school year. The spring months in a school year really are enjoyable and rewarding. This last grading quarter affords us opportunities to see the results of the hard work of our students and staff. We also can celebrate their accomplishments, growth, and victories.

I am very proud of the work we do here at NJ-SP. As a rural school corporation with a history of declining enrollment, we have been able to manage our resources appropriately and stay within the parameters of a constricted budget. We work hard and smart to meet the needs of our students. As a small school, we have benefitted from the ability to build relationships with our students. Special Education services are tailored to meet individual needs and goals. Our 7th and 8th grade Academy was designed to allow our students to receive more time on math and language arts with their teachers. A teacher, not a computer, teaches each of our dual-credit courses. Relationships matter and our school uses this philosophy as a foundation when making decisions regarding staffing and programs.

In these last two months of school there will be all kinds of emotions for our students and staff: fatigue, eagerness, anxiety, excitement, etc. May they all feel the exhilaration of rounding the corner and looking down the track to see summer.
